

what about flatchested@a32.com

I wish I could use symbols. Then I could just cut to the chase and be @@.com

Why do you think Noah wants me to have an email account, anyway????

P.P.S. Guess what Pritchard told me today? It's not P.S.S. actually but P.P.S. instead. Apparently it stands for post (after) scriptum (written) and although I'm not sure why it can't be post (after) scriptum (written) scriptum (written) it is apparently supposed to be post (after) post (after) scriptum (written). Actually I think it would make more sense to write scriptum (written) post (after) post (after) scriptum (written), but apparently that is not the rule.

P.P.P.S. Apparently the rule is also that you are not supposed to write post scriptums in English papers either. So there you go. Live and learn. Or I guess in your case you can die and learn, too.

P.P.P.P.S. That didn't offend you, did it, Anjali?

HI HI HI

This is MJB back on th my bust-up writing apparatus though I am without an "E" it can still do fun things ~~lik~~ such as this:

$$\begin{array}{c} \text{I} \quad \text{I} \\ \hline (0 \quad 0) \\ \text{V} \\ (\quad) \\ (\quad) \\ \text{mm} \end{array}$$
